Senator Criticizes

LNG Export Report

The U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) released a study last month largely ignoring concerns about increased energy prices and harm to natural resources. DOE concluded benefits to the gas industry outweighed negative impacts on consumers, manufacturers, farmers, and the environment. Oregon Senator Ron Wyden responded quickly and forcefully criticizing the shortcomings of the report.

Hanford Action Alert

The U.S. Department of Energy needs a new vision for Hanford that removes the pollution and minimizes the threat of contamination to the Columbia River and river communities. Submit your comments on the proposed changes to the Tri-Party Agreement by January 24th. We have created a sample comment letter that you can sign and send.

Development Report 2012

With 2012 giving all wrapped up, we're happy to report a great year of membership growth for Riverkeeper. Thanks to your support, Riverkeeper increased our individual giving by 67%. This extra support, along with grant funding, helped us grow our team from five to nine full-time staffers. We were also selected to be a part of the Willamette Week GIVE! Guide, which exposed us to a broad new audience via their newspaper, online, and social media presence. We're growing because we all need a healthy river. Thanks for helping expand our capacity to do this important work.

MEMBER SPOTLIGHT

Chris Arthur
Portland, Oregon

When Chris drove down the Columbia River Gorge for the first time, all three guardian mountains were out to welcome her. She felt like she was coming home. Today, she still feels right at home here in the Pacific Northwest. Chris has been personally affected by coal. She grew up in the South Yorkshire coalfields.
